Cashing in on boom

2 local mob figures open shop in Alaska

By JAMES WYCKOFF
Citizen Staff Writer

Two men who have been linked with Mafia leader Joseph Bonanno's "family" apparently are pulling up the last of their Tucson roots to concentrate on building business ventures in Alaska.

According to Tucson police, Salvatore "Sal" Spinelli, once a pal of top Bonanno aides, and Jerry Max Pasley, an alleged associate of one of Bonanno's sons, Salvatore "Bill" Bonanno, have opened jewelry and restaurant operations in Anchorage.

Capt. Harold Holdcroft, head of the Tucson Police Special Investigations Unit, said Pasley is owner of the Green Dragon tavern and restaurant in Anchorage, and Spinelli has opened a jewelry store there in partnership with Nick Begich Jr.

Begich is the son of the late Democratic Alaskan congressman Nick Begich, who was killed in an October 1972 Alaskan plane crash along with House Majority Leader Hale Boggs, D-La. Pasley, former owner of the Cabaret Lounge on East Speedway Boulevard, later married the elder Begich's widow. He opened the Anchorage establishment in 1974.

Pasley's East Side home here was offered for sale recently, and the two men no longer have any known local business holdings, according to Holdcroft. Spinelli, in his mid-30s, returned to Tucson last year after serving a term at La Tuna prison in Texas for defrauding the government of $900 in 1965 income taxes, according to Holdcroft. Spinelli ran a turquoise and silver jewelry business here after his release, but later moved to Alaska. He no longer has a local residence, authorities said.

Pasley admitted in a New York U.S. District Court in 1969 that he had helped Bill Bonanno use a fraudulently obtained credit card to purchase five airline tickets.

Spinelli in the late 1960s often also associated with Michael Licavoli, son of Pete Licavoli, a reputed Mafia chieftain from the Detroit area who has a home in Tucson.

Pasley and Spinelli have been business associates on past occasions, and once were officers in an Arizona investments corporation that specialized in beauty parlors here.

The men may be part of a relocation of what federal authorities call "peripheral" organized crime figures to the freewheeling towns of Alaska. Numerous recent reports indicate that the flow of money generated by construction of the Alaska pipeline has drawn reputed Mafia figures from Arizona, California and the Northwest coast.

Prostitution and illegal gambling operations reportedly are flourishing in Alaska.

Holdcroft said at least one other former Tucsonian tried his luck in Alaska, was arrested for alleged extortion, and returned here after release by Alaskan authorities.

Organized crime-watchers say the apparent relocation of Pasley and Spinelli and reports last year that the Bonanno clan is trying to move into

Two mob figures move

California operations do not signal an exodus of Tucson's contingent of reputed mob figures.

"I wouldn't say that's happening," Holdcroft said. "We still have the same main figures we've always had." He named Bonanno, Charles Bataglia, 58, Bonanno's alleged associate in the Tucson area now serving a prison term in Leavenworth, Kan., and Licaroli.

Bonanno's two sons, Bill and Joseph Jr., both of whom lived in Tucson before serving prison terms, have not resettled in Tucson. Bill Bonanno was released from Terminal Island federal prison in March 1974 after serving a term for mail fraud and tax evasion, and now lives in California. Joseph Jr. was released from prison in October after serving 26 months of a five-year term for extortion. Bill was placed on five years' probation in connection with the extortion case. It was not known where he is living.

Holdcroft said organized crime figures are showing a "new mode" in Arizona. "We're seeing them back more pornography stores here, in Phoenix and in California," for one thing, he said.

He said traditional ventures for organized crime here, including buying into ailing businesses before forcing them into bankruptcy and forcing them to sell their assets, still are in use.

Investigation to date by FBI, Anchorage, state and local authorities, Drug Enforcement Administration and Metro Drug Unit, has failed to establish any information indicating PASLEY currently engaged in any illegal activities.

PASLEY continues to reside in Anchorage, Alaska, and is the owner and operator of the Green Dragon Discotheque.

PASLEY recently contacted by SA [redacted] at which time he advised that he intended to stay in Anchorage, Alaska, and that his club, the Green Dragon, was doing very well. PASLEY indicated that he had no intention of doing anything to cause his liquor license to be revoked.

PASLEY continues to associate closely with [redacted] and makes an occasional trip to the Phoenix area in connection with both personal visits to associates and in connection with his bar.

An article that appeared in the March 11, 1976 edition of the Anchorage Daily Times indicated that PASLEY and his wife, MARGARET "PEGGY" PASLEY had filed for divorce but recent information obtained that they have had a reconciliation.

Since investigation to date has failed to establish any specific information concerning any illegal activities on the part of PASLEY, captioned matter being closed by the Anchorage Division.
